Required Use of Attic Insulation Rulers and Certs

Based on a DOE Monitoring visit conducted in January 2011 we are now requiring the use of Attic Insulation Rulers in attics when insulating with blown in loose fill insulation. It is important to verify that the attic is insulated to the level determined by the energy audit and to ensure that cost of the insulation charged to the program is verifiable. In addition, the attic rulers will help ensure that the blown insulation is level throughout the attic.

Furthermore, attach a certification (usually found on the insulation bag/cover) near the attic access filled out with the information of the job date and details.
